with her father until a more thorough investigation of her case is made, According to Maud, who is unusually large for her age, she stood a lot of usage from her family, and was willing to stand it and continue working for them until she fell in love. Ther all was off so far as home and mother was concerned. She was immediately fired with a resolve that ended he martyroom and she packed her kit and ran away to Brooklyn to be near her flance, Detectives Macauley and Celestine found Maud last night. She has been working since Tuesday, when she arrived in New York, as a maid for Mrs.

Hayes, No. 349 Jefferson avenue, Brooklyn, who is very much attached to her and says she will give her a home when her troubles are over.

"They treated me as mean as they could at home, Judge," said Maud. I was made to feel in every way that I was not wanted, and they heat and abused me and showed partiality to my younger brother and sister. I werked for a year and a half in a resturant and took home my $4.50 every week, but they always told me I was just an expense to them.
